Phototypesetting is a method of setting type, rendered obsolete with the popularity of the personal computer and desktop publishing software, that uses a photographic process to generate columns of type on a scroll of photographic paper.. The first phototypesetters quickly project light through a film negative image of an individual character in a font, then through a lens that magnifies or ...

Photographic processing or development is the chemical means by which photographic film or paper is treated after photographic exposure to produce a negative or positive image. Photographic processing transforms the latent image into a visible image, makes this permanent and renders it insensitive to light.. All processes based upon the gelatin-silver process are similar, regardless of the film ...
