

new taxonomy of educational pdf

Bloom's taxonomy is a set of three hierarchical models used to classify educational learning objectives into levels of complexity and specificity. The three lists cover the learning objectives in cognitive, affective and sensory domains. The cognitive domain list has been the primary focus of most traditional education and is frequently used to structure curriculum learning objectives ...

Bloom's taxonomy - Wikipedia

A group of cognitive psychologists, curriculum theorists and instructional researchers, and testing and assessment specialists published in 2001 a revision of Bloom's Taxonomy with the title A Taxonomy for Teaching, Learning, and Assessment. This title draws attention away from the somewhat static notion of "educational objectives" (in Bloom's original title) and points to a more ...

Anderson and Krathwohl (2001) revised Bloom's taxonomy to fit the more outcome-focused modern education objectives, including switching the names of the levels from nouns to active verbs, and reversing the order of the highest two levels (see Krathwohl, 2002 for an overview). The lowest-order level (Knowledge) became Remembering, in which the student is asked to recall or remember information.

A taxonomy is a nothing more than a classification system that arranges elements within a field of science according to their relationships. As educational psychology progressed in the early 1900's, researchers sought to improve methods of teaching and learning by classifying the response and reaction to information and mapping intellectual functions.
